the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are living in poverty has increased from 1.2 billion to 1.6 billion. The number of people who are living in extreme poverty has increased from 600 million to 800 million.

There are a number of reasons why the number of people in poverty has increased. One reason is that the world's population has increased. Another reason is that the world's economy has not grown fast enough to create enough jobs for all the people who are entering the workforce.

There are a number of things that can be done to reduce the number of people in poverty. One thing is to increase the world's economy. Another thing is to create more jobs. A third thing is to provide social safety nets for people who are in poverty.

There are a number of things that can be done to increase the world's economy. One thing is to invest in infrastructure. Another thing is to provide education and training for people who are in poverty. A third thing is to provide access to credit for people who are in poverty.

There are a number of things that can be done to create more jobs. One thing is to invest in new industries. Another thing is to provide training for people who are in poverty. A third thing is to provide access to credit for people who are in poverty.

There are a number of things that can be done to provide social safety nets for people who are in poverty. One thing is to provide unemployment benefits. Another thing is to provide food stamps. A third thing is to provide housing assistance.

There are a number of things that can be done to increase the world's economy, create more jobs, and provide social safety nets for people who are in poverty. These things are all important for reducing the number of people in poverty.
